

Chef Clifford believes that what the world needs is the perfect pastry. His brother believes that what the world needs is a good ten cent cigar. They're probably both wrong. Your first program will set the record straight. What the world needs is ... . Well, I guess that part's up to you. Write a program that prints two lines. The first line should read

Hello World!

The second line should read:

What the world needs is ...

Replace the dots with what YOU think the world needs. (It doesn't have to be serious.) Due Friday.

Upload the program to the upload site. (You'll find out how to do this in lab.) and test it. You have until one second before midnight on Friday.