1. When your program is executing, what is the operating system doing?

2. What two registers get replaced when an interrupt occurs? Why?

3. How does a program request services (like starting I/O) from the operating system?